@chickfila my 93-year-old grandma has been locked down in her care facility since March 10th to protect the residents from COVID19. You can see from the sign in the window what she's missing most.

LATONIA, Ky. (WKRC) - Dot Hunting sent a clear message to her family from inside her Northern Kentucky nursing home: Bring Chick-fil-A. And her wish is about to come true.

Hunting is 93 and she can't get enough chicken sandwiches. Nurses at Rosedale Green know she loves Chick-fil-A. At its Mother's Day parade, her sign was decorated with that message.

Her family thought the sign was funny and took the plea for fast food to social media. "Friend of mine...sent me a message and asked if I minded if she shared the picture with the Fort Wright Area Moms Club. And I said, 'Sure, I don't mind.' And, not 20 minutes later, she told me she had been in touch with some owners of a local Chick-fil-A and they were working on a sponsorship between the Fort Wright Area Moms Club and that Chick-fil-A location to cater for Rosedale. Good people can do good things is what that goes to show us," said Hunting's grandson, Kyle Burns.

This week, Hunting, the staff and Hunting's friends at Rosedale Green will be treated with Chick-fil-A sandwiches and all the fixings.

The family is touched strangers organized the feast to take care of them. On Thursday, Burns plans to stand outside grandma's window to catch her reaction.
